Battered womens advocates in Duluth have been national leaders in the handling of domestic violence cases for the past decades, since domestic violence was recognized as law a two has a enforcement problem rather than simply family matter. Their work evolved into the Domestic Abuse Intervention Project (DAIP), an independent organization currently headed by Ellen Pence, which coordinates and monitors the work of the justice system in intervening in domestic violence problems. Since Larry Shermans seminal work in Minneapolis in 1984, the law enforcement and criminal justice agencies in nearby Duluth have become nationall eaders in policies of mandatory arrest and victimless prosecution (also known no-drop prosecution). police department, city attorneys office, and as The so victim advocates have worked together over the past decade or to combat domestic violence. The DAIP currently grant from the Centers of Disease Control (CDC) to has a a screen and assess domestic violence cases, to test whether focused, coordinated community response to specific cases, based on additional assessments of risk factors, can prevent further violence. The DAIP staff are working on ways to use risk factors to try to identify who is in most danger, and intervene appropriately....
