[.] Andre. What was it, Maitland? Mail. Oh, -well, -she did not love me; that was all. So far my story has told the seeming only, but ere long the trial came, and then I found it was seeming, in good sooth. The Rebellion had then long been maturing, as you know; but just then came the crisis. It was the one theme everywhere. Of course I took my king's part against these rebels, and at once I was outraged, wronged beyond all human bearing. Her mad brother, her s, her s what a world of preciousness, Andre, that little word once enshrined for me; and still it seems like some broken vase, fragrant with what it held. Andre. And ever with that name, a rosy flash Paints, for an instant, all my world. Nay, tis a little love-poem of my own; go on, Maitland. Mait. This brother I say, quarrelled with me, though I had borne from him unresentingly, what from another would have seemed insult. We quarrelled at last, and the house was closed against me, or would have been had I sought access; for I walked sternly by its pleasant door that afternoon, though I remember now how the very roses that o'erhung the porch, the benched and shaded porch, that lovely lingering place, seemed to beckon me in. It was a breathless summer day, and the vine curled in the open window, -even now those lowly rooms make a brighter image of heaven to me than the jewelled walls that of old grew in the pageant of our sabbath dreams. Andre. And thus you abandoned your love? A quarrel with her...
