Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Enacted as a federal-state program under the Social Security Act in 1935, unemployment insurance was established to provide a temporary income to unemployed workers and to help stabilize the economy by maintaining the purchasing power of laid-off workers. About 8 million people received $9.7 billion in compensation during 1978. Normally, states pay 26 weeks of compensation, but during periods of high unemployment they pay an additional 13 weeks. Weekly compensation in most states is half of a recipient's average weekly gross wage before becoming unemployed, up to a maximum limit. In interviews with 3,000 persons receiving unemployment compensation, GAO found that compensation, either alone or combined with other income, replaced an average 64 percent of the recipient's net income before unemployment; about 7 percent replaced over 100 percent. Persons who replaced over 75 percent of their net before unemployment collected compensation over 2 weeks longer than those who replaced 75 percent or less; were more apt to exhaust compensation; were most likely to have quit their most recent jobs; and generally held jobs similar to ones...
