Excerpt: .seized, and converted into fuel by such visitors. From cleanly cut sections, made by the excavations in various parts of the island, a very distinct idea of the internal construction of the work was obtainable. (See Fig. 4 in the Plate). The old crannog builders appear to have selected a natural shoal in the loch as the scene of their operations. This shoal consists of marl, covered by a streak of whiteish sand, about four inches in depth. Over the sand, to a height of six or eight inches, was a stratum of yellowish clay, which supported unhewn logs of oak and birch, together with an immense quantity of small branches, twigs, brambles, small pebbles, c., c., compressed into a peatlike mass, about two feet thick. These are covered by about two feet of earth, containing here and there layers of burnt clay and Stones....
